phorical and somewhat vulgar acceptation side is right is to make a small experiment on, whatever the temperature may be, the Sanitary Board permits of a practical the superincumbent air, towards the end was not settled at last meeting. of the sitting, did become a little warm, but the heat was by no means so strong as to justify Mr Mitchell Innes in taking off-metaphorically, of course-his wellstarched under garment. This young official, along with a supply of brains somewhat above the average of the official class, possesses a rather irritable temper and has been rather liberally endowed with a guid conceit of himself - peculiarities which, during his occupancy of the magisterial beach, somewhat seriously detracted from the otherwise fairly good work which he then performed. Mr Mitchell-Innes has now been elevated into a higher sphere and Egyptian preference shares justified brought into contact with men who have less examination of the question of the British forbearance with these peculiarities than the evacuation, as a material difference in subjects he had to deal with while presiding at the Police Court; and one of the results of the conjunction was the little scene at last meeting of the Sanitary Board, in which our young official did not shine to advantage. At the first meeting of the new Sanitary Board it was stated that there were to be no official and unofficial members in the sense understood in the Legislative Council, but at all the meetings of the Board the distinction between the two classes has been marked. In dealing with open questions there has sometimes been a migration from one side to the other. Mr Stewart Lockhart sometimes found that his duty to the Chinese, of whom he was the protector, did not justify him in following Mr Price's lead, When, however, any question in which the Government was directly concerned was being discussed, no sheep ever travelled over to the side of the goals. Mr Francis had therefore considerable justification for saying at last meeting that, in deciding about a matter in which the Government had declared that it had Goods per Arratoon Apear undelivered definitely resolved to do such and such and only wished to know if the Board objected, the officials, however long a delay was granted, would be found voting one way and the unofficials another. By the very constitution of the Board it could not be otherwise, for the officials are not members of the Board as citizens but in virtue of the office they hold. Mr Mitchell-Innes, however, with his peculiar hot temper, discovered in Mr Francis' remark a reflection on his honour and an insinuation that he was voting against his conscience. If public men were to display such ultra-French touchiness, were to cry out about outraged honour whenever any one insinuated that their opinions were influenced by the party they belonged to or even hinted that they voted at their party's call, life would be unbearable and public discussion an impossibility. We are perfeetly willing to believe that Mr. Mitchell Innes and the Acting Registrar General are posal of the city refuse, but this does not preclude the very natural supposition that the opinion of Citizen Mitchell-Innes was influenced by the Acting Registrar General. delivery. It is possible also that the very carrying out of this work may lead the Sanitary authorities to look after the condition of the squatters and boat people in the neighbourhood, and perhaps the last state of the district may not be worse than the first. At any rate, the scheme seems so feasible that it might be worth a trial, especially as the work is of such a nature that it can be easily stopped if the experiment yields bad results. There are, however, other considerations besides the financial and purely sanitary ones. Is it advisable to reclaim the bay? Is it not serving a better purpose as a harbour of refuge? Six boatmen were charged at the Police Court to-day with being in possession of arms without a permit. A Chinese constable said the junk and two small boats pulled out last night from Lap-sap-wan it westerly direction. He was in the police boat at the time and saw they exhibited no lights. CHINESE RESPONSIBILITY.

Daily News.)

The Chinese theory and practice of responsibility has been often cited as one of the causes of the perpetuity of Chinese institutions. While we are impressed with flagrant violations of justice, which it in volves, it is impossible to be blind to its excellencies. In western lands where every one is supposed to be innocent until he is proved to be guilty, it is exceedingly diffisult to fix responsibility upon any particuheavy train of cars loaded with massengers. and an investigation fails to find any one in fault. A lofty building falls, and crushes scores of people, and while the architect is criticised, he shows that he did the best he could with the means at his disposal, and no one ever hears of his being punished. If an ironclad capsize, or a military campaign is ruined because the proper preparations were not made, or no made in time, eloquent speeches set forth the defects of the system which renders such events possible, but no one is punished. The Chinese are behind us in their conceptions of public justice, but might we not wisely learn again from them the ancient lesson that every one should be held rigidly responsible for his own acts. in order to the security of the body politic. The relation of the Chinese theory

On the morning of that day the ground was covered with white frost, and continued to be so covered every morning thereafter. We have noted these correspondences for some years, and have seldem observed a variation of more than the usual three days of grace, with the exception of the year 1888 in the northern part of Houan, where frust fell eleven days in advance of schedule time. But further inquiry showed that this was a purely local irregularity, undoubtedly due to the depraying influence of the great breach in the Yellow River only a few miles distant. With the resumption of imperial control over this errant stream. these breaches of climatic uniformity may be expected to disappear. The Greeland China Mail.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL FOR THE HOME MAIL TS PUBLISHED to suit the Departure of each English and French Mail Steamer for Europe. Formerly the Over-land issue was published fortnightly; but as it was deemed of special importance that a weekly budget of news should be prepared, it was decided to issue it weekly. Subscribers at Home, and those at the Coast Ports and in the interior, who find the Overland edition a convenient form of newspaper for their perusal, will welcome the change. The Overland China Mail, now a weekly compendium of news from the Far East, contains special Commercial intelli-gence, special tables of Shipping, and other information. The various Reports of Courts and Meetings, and all other news, are given in full as they appear in the Daily issue. The attention of Advertisers is directed to a weekly newspaper, which is circulated among old China hands and others, both at home and in the Far East, who do not take the daily journals.

The Overland China Mail will be regularly posted from the China Mail Office to subecribers, on their addresses being forwarded
